Tribute Speech

Definition – speech or writing in praise of a person or thing; high praise

You are to write your own tribute speech. Think about what someone might say in a speech about you at your 100th birthday party. Because someone else is giving this speech about you, your written assignment should be in third person. If you prefer to speak in first person when you give your presentation, that is fine. This assignment should be approximately one page.

You may want to mention:
- What you did for a living
- What accomplishments you made in your life
- Whether or not you married or had children
- What people remember about you
- What people say about you as a person
